The Friendly No

How to turn down a vape (or any pressure) and still keep your people.

The big idea: you're saying no to the offer, not to the person. Keep it short, keep it chill, and keep the friendship.

The No Toolkit

Six moves. Try them all, keep your favorites.

1 Keep it short

"Nah, I'm good."

No speech needed. A calm, quick no is hard to argue with, and it doesn't make things awkward.

☐ This one feels like me

2 Make it about you

"Not my thing. I've got a game tomorrow."

Talk about your choice, not their choice. Nobody feels judged, so nobody gets defensive.

☐ This one feels like me

3 Crack a joke

"My lungs are on a strict no-cloud diet."

Humor lowers the pressure for everyone and moves the moment along.

☐ This one feels like me

4 Offer a swap

"Nah — wanna go grab food instead?"

Pair your no with a yes to hanging out. It shows you still want to be there.

☐ This one feels like me

5 Broken record

"Still no. I'm good."

If they keep asking, repeat the same line, same calm voice. No new reasons to debate.

☐ This one feels like me

6 Buddy up & bounce

"I'm gonna go find Sam."

Have a friend who's on your side, and an easy exit if the vibe gets heavy.

☐ This one feels like me

Try it: check the two moves that sound most like you, then flip the page to practice.

ACTIVITY 1 Good or bad response?

A friend holds out a vape: "Wanna hit this?" Check Good or Bad for each reply. A good one says no clearly and keeps the friendship.

Response	Good	Bad
"Ew, that's gross. Why would you even do that?"	☐	☐
"Uh… maybe later?"	☐	☐
"Nah, I'm good. Wanna go get tacos?"	☐	☐
"Fine, just one."	☐	☐

ACTIVITY 2 Scenario remix

Write what you'd actually say. Borrow a move from the toolkit and name it.
